History:

Eustace Street has a rich and varied history, famous as much for its religious nature as for its bawdy houses and bars since the 17th century. Both Quakers and Presbyterians have a presence in Eustace Street. The Society of Friends Meeting House, almost directly opposite No.25, has served the Quaker population that settled in the Sycamore Street locality 200 years ago. The old Presbyterian School (now the children's centre, 'The Ark') was established in 1715, and the church served one of the richest Presbyterian parishes in the city from 1685.

L'histoire de la rue Eustace est riche et variée, célèbre autant pour son caractère religieux que pour ses maisons closes et ses bars depuis le 17ème siècle. Les deux Quakers et les Presbytère ont une présence dans Eustace Street. La Maisons de réunion des amis (The Society of Friends Meeting House), presque en face du Numéro 25, a servi la population Quaker qui s'est installés dans la rue Sycamore il ya 200 ans. L'ancienne école presbytérienne (aujourd'hui le centre pour enfants, «The Ark») a été créée en 1715, et l'église a servi l'un des presbytères les plus riches de la ville à partir de 1685.

On the façade of the Friends Meeting House is a plaque commemorating the first meeting at this house, which is presumed to be the site of the Eagle Tavern, of the United Irishmen, prior to the 1798 Rebellion.

Eustace Street was at the centre of a vibrantly theatrical area, which included Crow Street Theatre, The Smock Alley Theatre and Aungier Street Theatre.

Sur la façade de la maison de réunion des amis il y a une plaque commémorant la première réunion dans cette maison, qui est censé être le site de l'Eagle Tavern, des Irlandais-Unis, avant la rébellion de 1798.

Eustace Street fut au centre d'une zone vibrante de théâtre, qui comprenait Crow Street Theatre, Le Smock Alley Theatre et le théâtre de Aungier street.

No. 25 was built around 1720. Despite its potentially risqué past, it was, by 1830, the respectable home of J.D. Williams & Co., Woollen Merchants, and thereafter in 1841 the counting house of W.T. Meyler & Co. Merchants. By 1845 Patrick Costelloe, Merchant Tailor, shared No. 25 with a junior solicitor called William Bloomfield, who continued to have premises here until 1890, 45 years later. During his tenancy, Bloomfield cohabited with up to at least 8 other solicitors at any given time.

Le n ° 25 fut construit autour de 1720. Malgré son passé potentiellement risqué, elle était en 1830, la maison des respectables JD Williams & Co., des marchands de laine, et par la suite en 1841 la maison hébergea les marchands WT Meyler & Co. En 1845, Patrick Costelloe, marchand tailleur, qui partagea le n ° 25 avec un jeune avocat appelé William Bloomfield et continua à disposer des locaux jusqu'en 1890, 45 ans plus tard. Au cours de sa location, W. Bloomfield a cohabité avec pas moins de 8 autres avocats à des moments différents.

Once of the solicitors who worked from No. 25 from 1876-1879 was Standish O'Grady, the man that Yeats dubbed 'the Father of the Irish Revival'. Standish O'Grady began his magnum opus "O'Grady's History of Ireland" (1878-1880) while he was working here.

L'un des avocats qui a travaillé au n ° 25 de 1876 à 1879 était Standish O'Grady, l'homme était surnommé «le père de la renaissance irlandaise». Standish O'Grady a commencé son magnum opus "L'histoire de l'Irlande O'Grady" (1878-1880) alors qu'il travaillait ici.

Restoration

No. 25 Eustace Street was in a bad state of repair when it was acquired by The Irish Landmark Trust, but there were enough original features and information to reconstruct or repair most of the original features. The façade was replastered and painted, and some repair work had to be done to the sandstone casing around the front door. The original hall door was found dumped out in the back yard, and it was meticulously copied as it was unsalvageable.

Le n ° 25 de la rue Eustace était en mauvais état quand il fut acquis par The Irish Landmark Trust, mais il y avait suffisamment de caractéristiques originales et d'informations pour reconstruire ou réparer la plupart de ses éléments dans le style d'origine. La façade a été replâtrée et peintes, et des travaux de réparation ont été fait sur le revêtement en grès qui entoure la porte d'entrée. La porte d'entrée originale fut trouvée en morceau dans l'arrière-cour, et elle a été méticuleusement copiée puisqu'elle était irrécupérable.

Any sloping floor or stair surfaces were left this way, as it would have disturbed the fabric of the building too much to return them to level.

The general feeling throughout the house is of an early Georgian simplicity and modesty which some people today perceive as spartan, even though it is quite true to the period.

Toute la pente du plancher et des surfaces d'escalier a été laissée comme tel, car la structure du bâtiment aurait été perturbée s'il avait fallu les ramener à niveau.

Le sentiment général dans toute la maison est la simplicité et la modestie géorgienne précoce que certaines personnes perçoivent aujourd'hui comme austère, même s'il est tout a fait vrai pour cette période.

No.25 Eustace Street dates from c.1720. It is one of a small number of houses of the early 18th century to survive in Dublin. The characteristic features of houses of this period - tall narrow proportions, panelled interiors, and original bolection panelled staircase - all still survive in No.25. Few similar staircases survive in other 18th century houses in the city, since most have been removed during the course of later alterations.

Le numéro 25 de la rue Eustace date de 1720. Il fait partie d'un petit nombre de maisons datant du début du 18ème siècle qui survivent à Dublin. Les caractéristiques des maisons de cette époque sont les suivantes: les proportions sont hautes mais étroites et l'intérieur et les escaliers sont en lambris. Tous ces éléments survivent encore dans la maison au 25 de la rue Eustace. Quelques escaliers similaires survivre dans d'autres maisons du 18ème siècle de la ville mais la plupart ont été enlevés au cours de modifications antérieures.

The scarcity of surviving early Georgian panelled houses has been noted by many heritage and conservation organizations.

This house forms an integral part of the streetscape of Temple Bar. It retains the atmosphere of a house of its period with simple furnishings, an elegant dining room and a drawing room with a boudoir grand piano.

No. 25 Eustace Street is one of the few remaining houses in Temple Bar that still has its timber panelling intact. Unlike the grander Georgian houses in Merrion or Fitzwilliam Square, it was modest in its appointment and would therefore have been quite cheaply fitted out. This is particularly evident from the unusually thin timber used in the panelling.

La rareté des maisons géorgiennes en lambris qui survivent aujourd'hui a été relevée par de nombreux organismes de protection et conservation du patrimoine.

Cette maison fait partie intégrante du paysage du quartier de Temple Bar. Elle conserve l'atmosphère d'une maison de cette période avec un mobilier simple, une salle à manger élégante et un salon avec un piano à queue boudoir.

Le 25 de la rue Eustace est l'une des rares maisons qui restent à Temple Bar qui dispose de ses lambris en bois intacts. Contrairement aux grandioses maisons géorgiennes de Merrion ou Fitzwilliam Square, elle était modeste dans son ameublement et aurait donc été équipé assez bon marché. Cela est particulièrement visible à partir du bois anormalement mince utilisé dans les boiseries.

The entrance at street level leads into a modest hallway, which on the left originally led to two rooms that would probably have been used for conducting some type of business or commercial affairs. These rooms are now the offices of The Irish Landmark Trust.

L'entrée au niveau de la rue mène à un couloir modeste, qui conduisait à l'origine à deux pièces sur la gauche qui aurait probablement été utilisés pour effectuer des affaires ou des activités commerciales. Ces pièces sont désormais les bureaux de The Irish Landmark Trust.

Although we have no exact evidence as to the family or business who occupied the house in the 1720s, we do know that there was a wallpaper printing studio next door, which perhaps explains the amount of wallpaper found in the drawing room - in some places up to 7 layers were found, dating back to the 18th century, and some remnants are now displayed in the house.

Bien que nous n'ayons aucune preuve exacte de la famille ou d'une entreprise qui occupait la maison dans les années 1720, nous savons qu'il y avait un studio d'impression de papier peint, la porte à côté, ce qui explique peut-être la quantité de papier peint dans le salon - dans certains endroits jusqu'à 7 couches ont été trouvés, datant du 18ème siècle, et quelques vestiges de ces papiers sont maintenant affichées dans la maison.

The panelling in the hallway, stairs and landing on the first floor are all finished in a very simple timber panelling feature, known as bolection moulding - a moulding used to cover the joint between two members with different surface levels. It projects beyond both surfaces.

Les lambris dans le couloir, l'escalier et sur le pallier du premier étage sont tous fait dans un long métrage de bois très simple, connu sous le nom moulage 'bolection' - un moulage utilisé pour couvrir le joint entre deux parties ayant des niveaux de surface différentes. Il fait saillie au-delà des deux surfaces.

The stairs are also very modest, and do not display any great amount of ornamentation. Colours chosen throughout the house were based on research done on traditional Georgian colours. A hierarchy existed and often the entrance hallway was painted in a colour imitating stone. Irish Landmark used traditional paints, and a colour called "bone".

Les escaliers sont aussi très modestes, et ne présentent pas beaucoup d'ornementation. Les couleurs choisies dans toute la maison sont basées sur des recherches effectuées sur les couleurs traditionnelles géorgiennes. Une hiérarchie existe et souvent le hall d'entrée a été peint dans une couleur imitant la pierre. Le Landmark Trust a utilisé des peintures traditionnelles, et une couleur appelée «os».

Progressing upstairs there is a traditional Georgian green used on the panelling in the drawing and dining rooms. The stairs was painted a traditional 'mahogany' colour, again showing the aspirant nature of these modest Georgian houses.

Au premier étage, il ya un vert traditionnel géorgien utilisé sur le lambris dans le salon et la salle à manger. L'escalier a été peint dans la couleur traditionnelle «acajou», montrant à nouveau l'inspiration de la nature dans ces modestes maisons géorgiennes.

All the windows and some doors had to be replaced and they were done in accordance with correct period detail. The floorboards in the drawing and dining rooms are original. Hand knotted rugs add colour to the room without concealing the floorboards. There was no evidence of any decorative ceiling plaster work and the cornice itself is a very simple 'box' cornice as opposed to a more decorative one that would be found in a grander Georgian house.

Toutes les fenêtres et quelques portes ont dû être remplacés et cela, en conformité avec celles de l'époque. Les planchers dans les salons et salle à manger sont d'origine. Les tapis noués main qui ajoutent de la couleur à la chambre sans trop dissimuler le plancher. Il n'y avait aucune preuve de décoration en plâtre au plafond et sur la corniche, celle-ci est une très simple «boîte», par opposition à un style plus décoratif que l'on trouverait dans une maison géorgienne grandiose.

The furnishings throughout the house are eclectic and range from late Georgian to early Victorian, and almost all pieces are in mahogany.

There is a small functional kitchen off the dining room. Of course the original kitchen would have been in the basement (now part of Irish Landmark's offices).

Le mobilier dans toute la maison est éclectiques et correspond à des périodes qui vont de la fin de l'époque Géorgienne au début de l'époque victorienne, et presque tous les éléments sont en acajou.

Il ya une petite cuisine fonctionnelle à coté de la salle à manger. Bien sûr, la cuisine originale aurait été dans le sous-sol (qui fait maintenant partie des bureaux d'irish Landmark trust).

Two bedrooms on the second floor have been decorated and furnished in a similarly modest fashion. The colour used upstairs is again a traditional Georgian blue/grey and is also a traditionally made paint (i.e. no chemicals were used in its manufacture).

Deux chambres à l'étage ont été décorées et meublées dans un style similaire modeste. La couleur utilisée à l'étage est encore une fois, un bleu/gris traditionnel géorgien et est également une peinture fabriquée traditionnellement (aucun produit chimique n'a été utilisé dans sa fabrication).

Because of the cruciform roof structure the ceilings on the top floor are lower and slanting. There would originally have been two bedrooms here (one perhaps for the maid) but we have turned one of the bedrooms into a large bathroom. (The original toilet would have been in a shed in the back garden.) The bedroom on this floor has three matching mahogany beds made by the well-known manufacturers "Heal & Sons" and the windows in this room are much smaller than throughout the rest of the house.

En raison de la structure du toit cruciforme les plafonds de l'étage supérieur sont inférieurs et obliques. Il devait y avoir à l'origine deux chambres a cet endroit (une peut-être pour la femme de chambre), mais nous avons transformé une des chambres en une grande salle de bains. (La toilette originale aurait été dans un hangar dans le jardin.) La chambre à cet étage possède trois lits en acajou fabriqué par la célèbre manufacture " Heal & Sons", les fenêtres de cette salle sont beaucoup plus petites que dans le reste de la maison.

All of the blinds throughout the house are based on the original type of blinds that would have been used, 'Holland blinds'.

Tous les stores dans toute la maison sont basés sur le type original de stores qui été utilisés « stores hollandais ».
